SendtoMedia is a neat little tool to send files, music, pictures, documents and other items of information to any device. There are no other items to launch or any other extra software to install on your computer. How does it work? At first, you need to sign up with the free service, and you're set to go. Once you login, you can make sure that your folders are downloaded to their respective folders on the service. This way, you can send the files from any device. As for the sending itself, you can get to it in one of two ways. First, you can go to the homepage of SendtoMedia.com, and there you can access the "Send" section, where you can start sending your files with just a few clicks. Another option is to open the "Sending Options" directly from the homepage. This will allow you to specify what kind of files you want to send. You can add files as you like, as well as specify the time you want the sending to begin. At the end of the sending process, you can also specify what you want to receive, along with a custom message, if you like. You can select the option to send the files in a specific folder, or even keep them on the original destination.
